ELWYN COLLINS GAGE

DR. HARRY A. SPRAGUE

"It is a real blessing that no person is ever contented with goals achieved. High School graduation marked a goal. College graduation marks another. Yet by the time such goals are attained life has grown too big to be satisfied and too rich to be inert. Each new scene in the cycle of life marks a new beginning with new horizons. There is always a great Beyond.

"When one is exploring the fields beyond and is continually attaining new goals, desires multiply, capacities increase, and life grows richer and fuller. So we are always sophomores and never graduates. The measures of success may be graduated into degrees, but as dynamic human beings we may not graduate with degrees but only attain by degrees.

"The College wishes for you continuous growth and high attainment. We of the faculty wish to be worthy of your fondest memories, to glory in your successes, and to share in your honors."

Without the SGA, student activity and campus life would soon be at a standstill. This busy organization is the "key" through which all clubs and activities function. The members of the SGA can recall with pride their contributions—usually uncredited and behind the scenes—to this representative, democratic body.

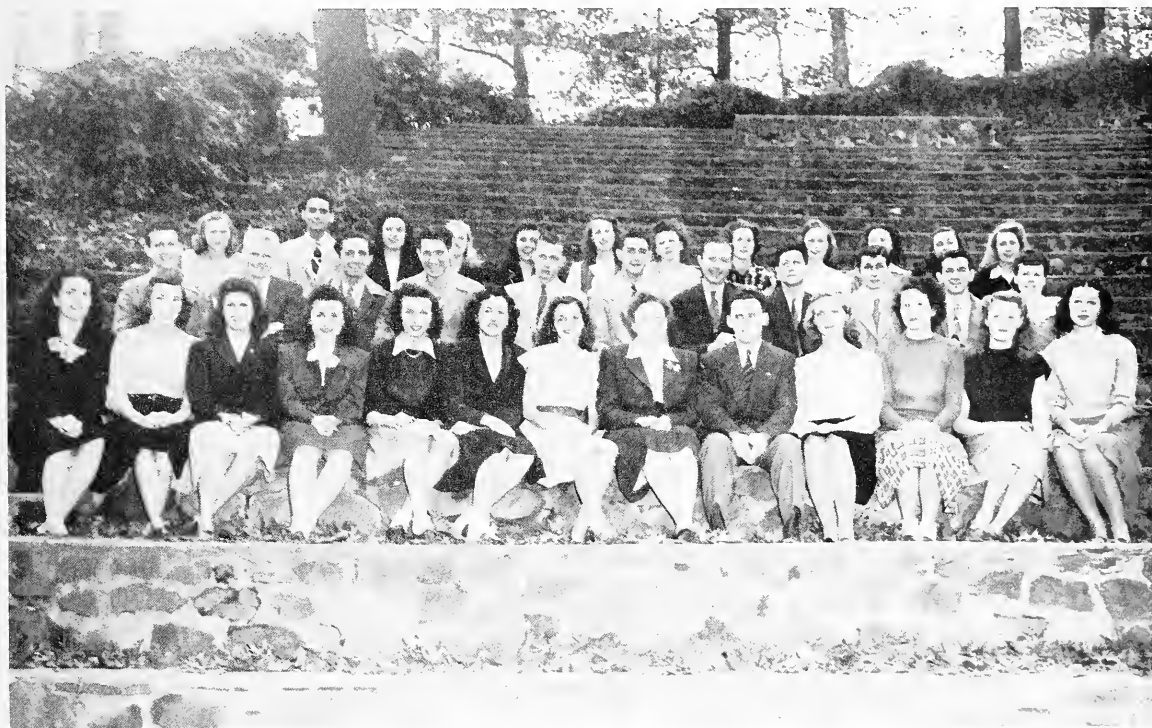

The SGA, acting as a corporation, allocates funds to the various clubs, publishes La Campana, the Quarterly, the Montclarion and the Arrowhead, and enables the students to attend varsity games and campus social activities without charge.

The SGA functions through a Board of Trustees, composed of five executive officers elected by the entire student body and two representatives from each class. The president of each of the four classes is automatically a member of the Board.

At the regular meetings, held twice a month on Wednesday afternoons, current and future business is discussed—such as the chartering of a new club, the coordinating of social affairs, or the planning of coming assembly programs.

The SGA can truly have its "remembrance of things past": its loyalty to the school, its satisfaction of a hard job well done, its spirit and tradition of teamwork and cooperation.

K A P P A D E L T A P I

Gamma Epsilon is Montclair's chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, a national honorary education society. Each year juniors and seniors who have maintained a high scholastic record and who have actively contributed to the many activities of the college, are elected by the organization's members and by faculty representatives.

The candlelight initiation is a ceremony which will live forever in the memories of members of Kappa Delta Pi. Another tradition is the Coffee House which is held at the March meeting in Chapin Hall. Amid the surroundings of an old English Coffee House, senior members who are student-teaching return to relate their experiences. Following a period of valuable discussion, the meeting adjourns with a song-fest.

To some Montclair students, Kappa Delta Pi is the mark of distinction which has crowned their college careers, but to all Montclair students, Kappa Delta Pi stands as one of the stepping stones leading toward a world of higher education; a world of understanding; a world of peace.

ALDORNIA

The ultimate ambition of every English major at Montclair is to be a member of the honorary English society, Aldornia. Each year twenty junior and senior students are elected to the society on the basis of a high scholastic record and an active contribution to campus life. This year the organization limited itself to programs which brought to light a few of the literary achievements of our modern American scene.

Aside from the traditional evening of enjoyment with Pro Musica and the annual "farewell to seniors—welcome to new members" banquet, Aldornia also sponsors its own unpublished magazine, Ainrodla, which is composed of original contributions by the members. Then of course all Aldornians will always remember the little family that sits in attentive silence at the monthly meetings—Algernon, Algenia, little Aldalusia, and baby Aldoggia.

As English teachers of the future, the members of Aldornia will often turn back their memories to those pleasant hours of mingled learning and friendship.

Membership in Aphesteon, the honorary mathematics society, is limited to junior and senior math students who have shown great promise in their chosen field and whose ability and scholarship merit this reward. The society fosters interest and research in the many fields of advanced mathematics by inviting prominent mathematicians and alumni to speak at the monthly meetings, and encouraging scholarly discussions among the members.

The social season of Aphesteon is started with an open house party to make known the aims and activities sponsored by the organization. Awards are presented to the students with the highest scholastic records for the year to reward their diligence and application during their college careers. The active social season is concluded with a farewell party given for the departing seniors. The friendly atmosphere and academic advancement enrich the lives of the members during their college days and provide a more complete background and pleasant memories for their work in the teaching profession.

One of the outstanding traditions on campus is the annual tea given by Pro Musica, the honorary music society, as a welcome to the new members. In return, the members contribute to the society by giving short talks on familiar composers. To have been invited into the society is an honor in itself, for invitation is extended only to those students who not only have excellent scholastic records but also have shown musical ability in various campus activities. Pro Musica has thus become a center for those Montclair students who are interested in developing their musical talents or careers.

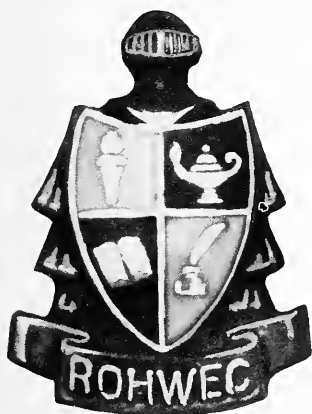

Topics dealing with music in its many phases are presented and discussed at the monthly meetings. Open meetings and programs are also held, and all students will remember enjoying the splendid concerts by well-known guest artists.

While Pro Musica symbolizes honor and musical scholarship, it also provides a rich background for future teachers. Many will be the recollections of the hours well spent in the fellowship of those who love good music.

PRO MUSICA

To many a Montclair alumnus the name Rohwec will bring warm reminiscence of those happy days spent in the wholesome good fellowship of the society's members. Being the college's honorary social studies society, Rohwec has served as a worthy goal for all of our social studies majors to strive to attain.

The most important event of the year is the annual banquet at which all new members are initiated, learning for the first time the meaning of the name Rohwec. At the same affair Rohwec presents its annual award to a former member who has become an outstanding teacher of at least five years' service, successfully practicing the principle of the organization—to vitalize the study of history and present day problems. Each year provides a variety of programs from distinguished speakers to debates and forums, but all are aimed at the upholding of the high scholarly traditions of the club. Rohwec is truly the pinnacle of the social studies majors' success.

ROHWEC

AGORA

This year has seen a strong revival of Agora, a men's organization dedicated to good fellowship and stimulating discussions upon problems of the day. Meetings are held bi-weekly at Russ Hall, following which the members traditionally serenade the dormitories. Agora is best remembered on campus through its initiations, during which the new members wear bizarre costumes and perform unusual antics.

A fall banquet, to which all M.S.T.C. men were fraternally invited, was held in the Robin Hood Inn. After the Christmas recess, an Open House was enjoyed by the members and their guests. Agoreans can indeed treasure their memorable meetings together.

AMERICAN VETERANS COMMITTEE

In the spring of 1946, a group of World War II veterans decided to form on campus a chapter of the nationwide American Veterans Committee. Since then the chapter has grown into a thriving organization which has contributed much to the welfare of the college as a whole.

Perhaps best remembered are the UNNRA drive and the "Information Booth" which the chapter set up during Orientation Week. At the regular meetings, matters of local and national interest to the veteran are discussed, and the members will not forget the many stimulating exchanges of ideas and opinions.

SENATE

As the oldest honorary men's organization on campus, Senate has renewed during the past year the cultural and social interests that have been among the worthiest contributions to the traditions of the college. The members will long remember the impressive autumn ceremony in which trees and a bronze plaque were dedicated to the memory of the two Senators who died for their country.

The members attended several theatrical productions during the year and enjoyed an "Alumni Day" reunion. Social meetings are held at Mr. Bohn's home, with topics pertaining to contemporary culture being discussed. Senate is rich in its memories of fraternal fellowship.

PHI LAMBDA PI

Last year a new men's organization appeared on campus under the name Phi Lambda Pi. Since then, this group has become not only one of the most active clubs of the college, but also one of the better known. The group strives to foster better relations among the men students and to reach a better understanding of the role of the male in education. Besides the monthly meetings, many social affairs are held throughout the year, including dances, skating parties and visits to the theaters.

The spirit of fellowship is already strong in the traditions and memories of Phi Lambda Pi.

EPSILON MU EPSILON

Formerly the Commercial Club, this club adopted its Greek name during the past year. It brings together the business majors and minors in an atmosphere of fun and fellowship. At the monthly meetings, lectures are often given by prominent business men, motion pictures on business practices are shown, and the members relate their actual working experiences in the business world. Social life is not neglected, however, and the members enjoy the variety of programs that are presented.

In the coming years, many problems of the teaching and business profession will find solution in recollections of Epsilon Mu Epsilon days.

Most of Montclair's students live off campus and arrive each morning in cars, buses, and trains. For these commuters, a club has been formed for social purposes and for discussion of mutual problems.

This organization has become one of the most active in the college. The monthly evening meetings are always well attended, despite the fact that the members must travel from many different communities. Dances, teas, and picnics are sponsored throughout the year. Memories of these friendly affairs will offset the long minutes in the cold and the rain that are always a part of the commuter's life.

BUREAU OF STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

Miller, Holonich, Phillips, Rubin, Tiene

All of Montclair's publications—the Montclarion, La Campana, the Quarterly, and the Arrowhead—are coordinated and supervised by a representative group of editors and business managers called "The Bureau of Student Publications." Thus each publication has a voice in the direction of its affairs.

The Bureau submits to the SGA a general budget for the publications, regulates and recommends expenditures, and acts as an executive board. On the whole, the Bureau serves to keep a "weather-eye" upon the publications, and provides such liaison as will insure teamwork and harmony.

Most students have little knowledge of the activities performed by this Bureau, yet its services are indispensable and vital to our traditions of a well-publicized campus life.

QUARTERLY ARROWHEAD

Worthwhile experiences and emotions are worthwhile recording. The Quarterly offers this opportunity to the writers of poetry, essays and short stories. Published four times during the school year, this magazine is entirely written, illustrated and edited by members of the student body. In addition, much valuable experience of literary criticism is gained, providing a rich background for the prospective teacher.

Who will ever forget being pounced upon by some eager staff member asking, "Can you write?" Quarterly will also be remembered for its attractive posters—such as, "Spare time? Write for Quarterly." In the future, scanning issues of Quarterly will refresh those memories of college life which were so full of meaning.

A true souvenir of freshman days is the Arrowhead. Most students will remember how, in their first days of confusion as to where to go and what to do, they turned to the informative pages of this publication. The Arrowhead is published annually by the Freshman Orientation Committee of the SGA as a helpful service for all new students. Much of the work necessary for publication is done during the summer, so that all of the information given will be up-to-date and complete—from last minute faculty changes to the latest transportation schedules.

The hard-working Arrowhead staff will recall with pleasure their many hectic but well rewarded "deadline" hours.

LA CAMPANA MONTCLARION

Every college seeks to preserve a record of college life, of faces which otherwise might escape our memory, and of activities. Thus we have this yearbook—the story of our days at Montclair.

A skeleton staff assembles in September and makes its decisions as to the printer, photographer, typography, the theme, the dedication and the cover. Assignments are made by the editors. There are countless details—senior and activity write-ups, activity slips, photography schedules, preparation and editing of copy, working with the printer, proofreading and hoping that nothing has been omitted! By December the yearbook is in rough form; finally, at the end of the term, it is put into the hands of the eager student.

The spirit of a college is usually reflected through its newspaper—and the Montclarion during the past year has maintained its high standards of spirited journalistic endeavor. Everyone on campus eagerly seeks his copy of the college paper on every other Friday.

Many hectic hours of work go into the making of each issue. From the first football story to the last minute details of commencement, the staff aims to provide complete coverage of all activities. Experience is gained in reporting, writing feature articles, copy reading, composition and journalistic "know-how" that prospective teachers can gain in no other way.

In the coming years the members will look back with pleasant recollection upon a job well done.

SCIENCE CLUB

The meetings of this club are very welcome to the science majors who have carried on their studies under difficult conditions. Prominent speakers discuss various phases of science, and the members present programs of interest to the teacher of tomorrow. During the year, visits were made to several industrial plants in this area, picnics and parties were held, and Christmas cards were sold.

In the coming years, the members will recall the many enjoyable activities of this club and its warm spirit of fellowship.

GEOGRAPHY CLUB

Meeting each month, this club for M.S.T.C. students who have carried their interests in geography beyond the freshman physiography course, gathers to further its knowledge of the geographical problems of our world. The organization has gained much from its films, field trips, lectures by guest speakers and informal talks by its own veteran members who have come back from various foreign lands.

In the future, the sight of a world globe or map will recall the many imaginary journeys of the Geography Club.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Through its informal monthly meetings, the Psychology Club attempts to stimulate interest in psychological principles and their application in the teaching field. The club members, who are accredited or enrolled in a psychology course, have broadened their viewpoint in this subject through programs featuring guests, speakers, and field trips. In all meetings, progress in the field of psychology is integrated with the teaching profession.

While teaching, members will gratefully recall the friendly hours of learning and the very enjoyable social affairs of this club.

SIGMA PHI MU

This club, open to all math majors or minors, offers many new ideas to its members to aid them in the teaching field. Interesting meetings, featuring games based on math problems, and social events such as square dances and roller skating parties, are held once a month.

Each year the club combines with the Science Club and holds a picnic. But in the years to come the memories will dwell longest upon the traditional Christmas party with Apheston, the parent group. This reunion serves to bring the members together in a spirit of friendship.

LE CERCLE LA TERTULIA FRANCAIS ESPANOLA

The purpose of this club is to promote cultural understanding between the United States and France. At the meetings, conducted in French, variety programs are presented featuring native dances, songs and costumes. The club maintains regular correspondence with fellow "etudiants" in France.

The spirit and traditions of France will remain a vivid memory to the members of this club.

At the meetings of this club, aspects of Spanish culture are discussed. The members, wearing colorful costumes, learn the dances of Spain and Latin America, as well as native songs. This year, programs were given in many neighboring high schools.

The members will long remember the hours spent in the fellowship of this club.

Row one: Garretson, Coleman, Wolfe, Olin, Makovsky, Arminio, Vlahopolis, Di Rubbo, Marshall, Foti. Row two: Goscinski, Ader, Creutzburg, Di Petro, Pressimone, Wyre, Bartell. INTER NOS IL CIRCOLO ITALIANO

Inter Nos, formerly the Classical Club, inaugurated a new policy of more social activities woven around Roman customs.

In the spring, members visited the Metropolitan Museum and also saw a Greek play. For the last meeting, a typical Roman banquet was held. Inter Nos has helped to create living memories of the great civilizations of the past.

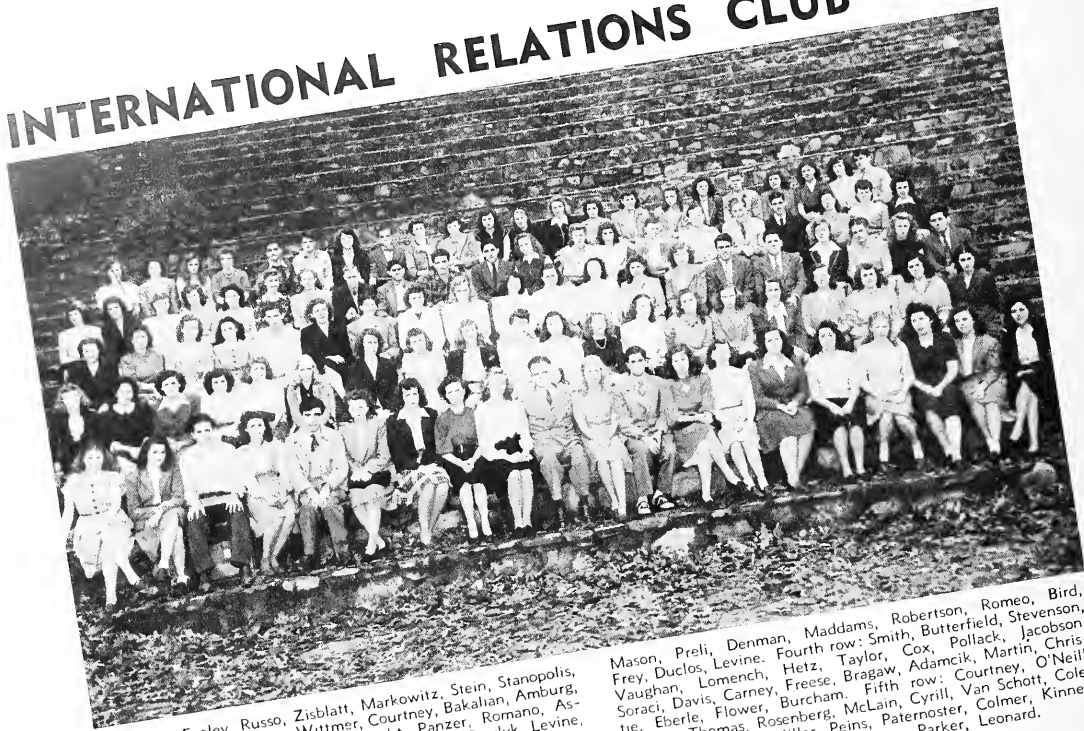

This club strives to give people interested in Italian culture a knowledge of the folk songs, dances, language and festivities of the people. Members present comedy skits, native dances and listen to Italian operas. The year's activities are climaxed by the annual banquet.

Members will remember the imaginary hours spent in the colorful country by the Mediterranean Sea.

CLIO

More than ever, a knowledge of world affairs is essential to the teacher of tomorrow. Besides the interesting monthly meetings, the club sponsors field trips and regional forums. This year, visits were made to Town Hall, to foreign restaurants and sections, and to theaters having foreign movies and dramas. At the end of the term, the campus was the site of the annual New Jersey International Relations Forum, a conference bringing together many high schools in this area.

This club will recall its many activities with pride and with the knowledge that it has contributed to the making of a better world.

First row: Densiger, Gruppo, Balabus, Markowitz, Alba, Rubin, Sena, Schneider, Sass, Widmer, Mandos, Monica, Cheevers, Riehl. Second row: Citron, Aglio, Altman, Stanopolis, Houseknecht, Peppinhaus, Amburg, Cobb,

As an honorary social studies organization for women students, Clio centers its activities and programs around current economic and social problems. At the monthly meetings, interesting films are shown and engaging speakers are heard. Field trips of sociological value are sponsored.

But Clio has its lighter side, too. Its riotous initiation of new members is amusing to the whole student body. It holds an annual cake sale which proves that the members know something about baking as well as teaching. A traditional farewell gesture to the departing seniors is a theater trip to New York, which in the coming years will provide many happy recollections.

One of the most active groups on the campus, the Intercultural Relations Group endeavors to make known to the students the latest trends in intercultural education and to interest them in the activities of the club.

At the meetings, panel discussions are centered upon problems confronting modern America. Well known speakers have also addressed the group upon racial, economic, social and religious topics.

The Newsletter will be remembered as one of their many accomplishments. This monthly report, usually distributed with the Montclarion, brings to light significant information concerning controversies in this field.

WOMEN'S CHOIR

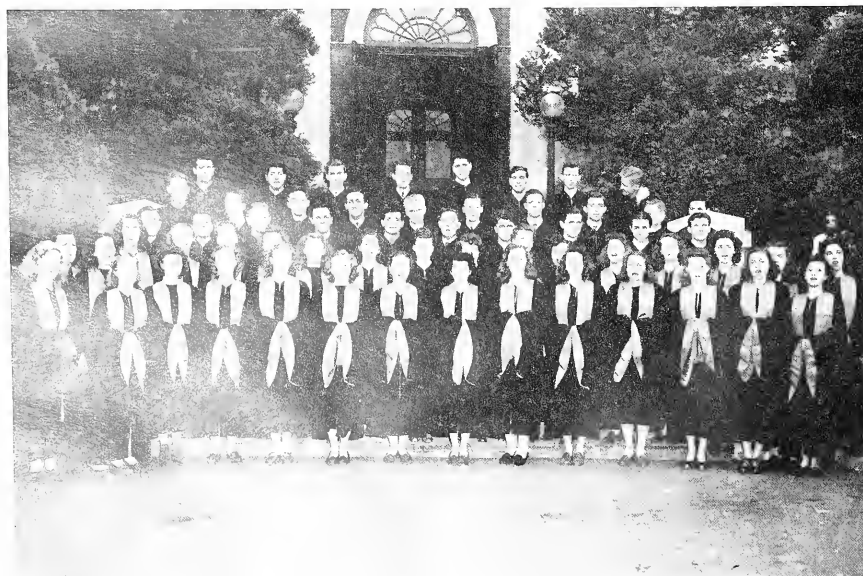

The choir, one of the few "a cappella" choirs in the country, is a leader in the field of unaccompanied group singing. It gives programs consisting of classical and secular music, including original compositions by the director, Carl F. Mueller, in churches and high school assemblies.

The choir has engendered many warm and stirring memories for everyone on campus.

COLLEGE CHOIR

The College Choir offers the opportunity of women's and men's voices uniting in song, and at the weekly meetings training is given in vocal development. The choir cooperates with other organizations in providing musical backgrounds for Christmas and spring programs.

For many of the members, the College Choir will be synonymous with memories of enthusiastic group singing.

ORCHESTRA

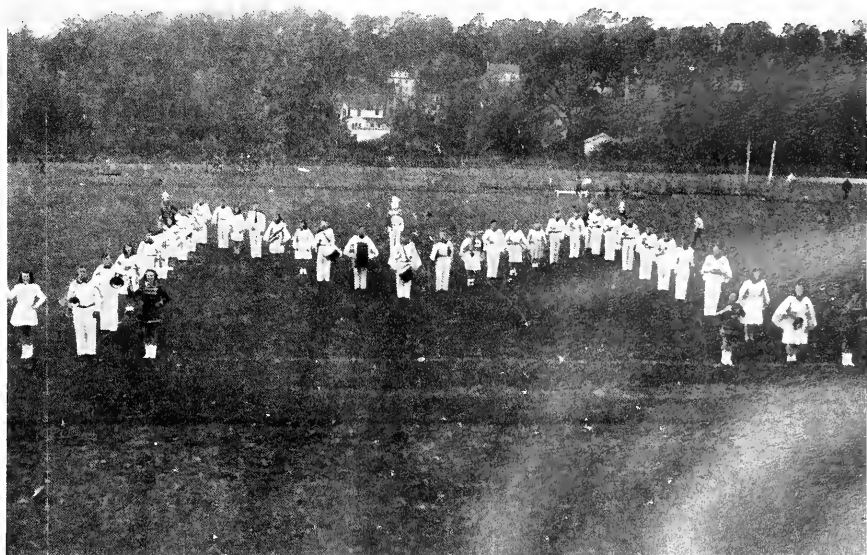

Everyone looks forward to the yearly concert given in Russ Hall by the college orchestra. Rehearsals are held throughout the year, and many fine musicians are developed. Under the baton of Mr. Emil Kahn, the orchestra has established a high standard of excellence.

BAND

Our memories are always stirred by recollections of the strains of our "Alma Mater" as played by the college band. This year Montclair's band was again prominent in creating enthusiasm at the varsity games.

Under the direction of Mr. Moore, the band has made remarkable progress, and its colorful presence serves to invigorate campus life.

POETRY CLUB

At the informal meetings of this club, classical and modern poetry are interpreted and criticized, and original manuscripts are submitted for group discussion. Frequently the programs center around an individual poet or a certain school of poetry.

Reminiscences of this club will focus upon the enjoyable reading and writing together of poetry and its allied arts.

PLAYERS

Recalling the excitement of Montclair's own "first nights," students know that Players provides vivid recollections of being behind the footlights, and ample stage experience.

Stepping behind the scenes of this year's production, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," one found apprentices busy applying layers of makeup, making last minute alterations, checking the scenery and focusing the spotlights.

the author's name, in order that the discussions may be free from prejudice.

In reminiscing, the members will speak of the most creative and stimulating hours of their lives.

CHORAL SPEAKING

This organization seeks to use the human voice as a means of expression. The club presented several novel programs—the reading of prose and poetry in unison—during the year.

The Choral Speaking Club will remain a living memory in the minds of its members—for the good times it has had and for its creative efforts.

ZETA PHI

Zeta Phi is an organization for students interested in speech. The highlight of this year was a presentation of "Autumn Magic," a radio program of choral speaking. Zeta Phi's Speech Playhouse also revived its traditional Christmas program.

This club will provide for its members memories of new ideas and techniques in the field of speech.

LEADERS' WORK SHOP

First row: Krisow, Feeley. Second row: Phelps, Krantz, Lewand.

The Leaders' Work Shop has for its purpose the discussion of problems faced by group leaders as well as methods and techniques used in directing recreational activities. At the meetings, members practice being leaders by personally conducting the discussions and guiding the symposiums that follow.

Valuable experience is thus gained by this group, and in the future the members will feel well repaid for having participated in the Leaders' Work Shop.

Every Thursday afternoon, girls have flocked to the gym to take part in the Dance Club. Under professional guidance, members have gained poise and grace.

The whole student body will remember looking forward at the end of the year to the annual dance recital, usually held in the amphitheater. This recital is intended to illustrate the various moods that can be expressed through creative dancing.

The past school year has seen expansion in the Physical Education department. One activity was the organization of the Allan G. Ireland Club, dedicated to a pioneer in Health and Safety Education.

In December, members attended the state convention of the Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Association. At the meetings, enlightening topics are discussed. This club will recall with pride its achievements in this field.

Artsmen was reorganized this year. The members meet at the Art Workshop to participate in water coloring, oil-painting and the making of sculpture. The group also makes trips to museums and art exhibits in the metropolitan area and holds discussions pertaining to the creative arts.

The sight of any artist at work will bring vivid memories to the members of the busy hours spent in the Workshop.

"Do you want to buy a ticket?" brings back memories of Tribe—the go-getting, varsity lettermen's organization at Montclair which strives to make athletics a vital factor in the life of the college. Once one of the most active groups on campus, Tribe became dormant during the war. During the past year, however, it has again resumed its many traditions and functions and has contributed much to M.S.T.C.'s welfare.

Tribe sponsored a committee to coordinate plans for the erection of an appropriate college War Memorial, and donated four hundred dollars of its funds towards this. It held pep rallies to stimulate interest in the varsity football and basketball games, and made every effort to secure transportation for those who wished to attend the games. Tribe held a mid-winter dance, as well as a banquet for its alumni.

All lettermen automatically become members of this organization, which is governed by a cabinet of five members elected each year to serve as a controlling body. These lettermen, in working for a healthier and ever expanding athletic program at Montclair, are not seeking to further their own interests—instead, they feel that they are contributing to the sporting tradition that is part of the educative process in college.

The members of Tribe will treasure their unselfish services for the school, as well as the tribute of President Sprague: "Personally I like the athlete—his eye, his step, and his spirit."

First row: Spargo, Rosamilia, Mauriello, Christensen, Sherry.
Second row: Nazarro, Maginness.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Women's Athletic Association, which boasts of one of the largest active memberships on campus, has exerted a strong influence in shaping the lives of its members. The varied extracurricular activities which it sponsors constitute a major part of the program of health and recreation for Montclair's women.

The first sport of the year, hockey, is welcomed by the "rugged" girls. The 1946 season was memorable for the consistently clear weather which enabled the participants to fit in a maximum of outdoor practices. This year Montclair was honored by an invitation to participate in a hockey play day sponsored by the North Jersey Field Hockey Association.

The advent of the volleyball season brought an innovation to the program of the W.A.A.—night games. These games provided some very enjoyable social occasions for the girls who played and the many interested spectators.

Basketball, the perennial favorite at Montclair, was ushered in after the Christmas holiday. Highlights of the season were the games played with teams from Panzer and Newark State Teachers College. On both occasions our courtsters made excellent showings.

Spring found our girls outdoors for archery and softball. Early in the season, the archers might have been considered a menace to innocent campus strollers, but perseverance finally paid off in shattered bull's eyes. In softball, the competition aroused by the interclass and Red and White games produced the necessary balance of fight and fun which combined to develop the true sportsmanship displayed by Montclair's women athletes.

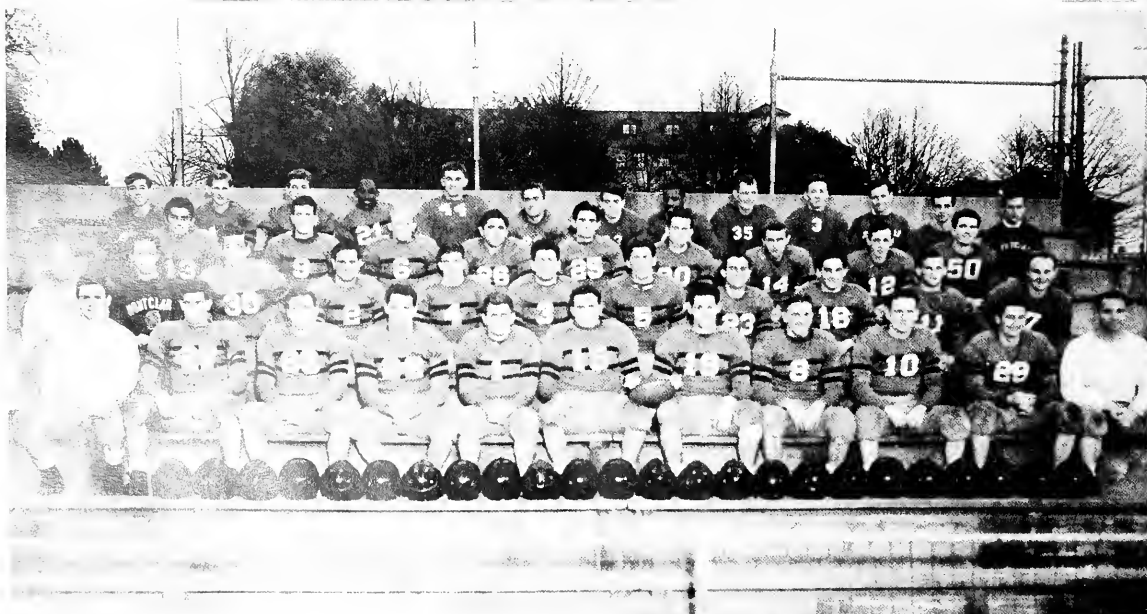

This most successful year was ended by the annual W.A.A. banquet held in Chapin Hall. The dinner and original program of games and activities were prepared by members of the senior class. On that occasion the 1947-48 officers were installed and the athletic awards for the past year distributed. More girls of the senior class of '47 earned the coveted "gold M," highest award offered by the W.A.A., than was won by any previous class.

This memorable record is definite proof that the W.A.A. has established its worth through its effective guidance program and its coordination of the women's sports activities.

Cheering crowds at Sprague Field, footballs again spiraling from the toes of Montclair's Indians in the crisp fall air, the martial strains and the rousing drum beat of the band—these announced that Montclair was back on the gridiron after a wartime lull of three years. Once again there was the sight that stirs the blood of every student, alumnus and faculty member—the kick-off and the red-and-white jerseyed players moving down the field!

The season was filled with difficulties. But despite a late start, late-scheduled classes, numerous injuries and short practice sessions that made Coach Coder's task extremely difficult, the team climaxed a season of hard-fought defeats with a roaring finish when it conquered Trenton, its traditional rival of past years. This was accomplished because so many of the players were willing to give their all for their team and college, even though this meant commuting long distances after six P.M.

Yes, the Indians returned to the gridiron in the fall of 1946. They returned with that fine brand of sportsmanship which prompted an opposing coach to say, "Montclair showed my team the right way to win." Long may this be our spirit and tradition!

BASKETBALL

Second row: Walsky, Maginess, Lanzalotto, Bessinger, Patson, Marquardt.

This year the highlight of our winter's sports season was the resounding "whack" of a basketball against the backboard of Montclair's gym as our speedy courtsters fought to bring victory to their Alma Mater.

Despite many serious handicaps—a small gymnasium, inadequate equipment and facilities, crowded schedules, commuting, and practices sandwiched in between other activities, the basketball team this year performed creditably. Again Coach Coder worked hard to produce a good team and gave his time unstintingly.

Playing material was quite abundant this year, since many of the pre-war lettermen returned to the campus, and competition was severe for the varsity. A Junior Varsity team was organized to provide reserves and future stars for the varsity. For the first time in five years, there were even several tall centers available.

Several of the players of the squad were also members of the football team. Furthermore, several of the players became proud fathers during the season—but basketball preceded parental duties!

The team was a credit to Montclair, playing a game that will long be remembered as living up to the finest of our college traditions.

Jaggard, Sulley, Toth, Christensen

For most of the girls who have lived as freshmen and sophomores at Russ, the memories through the years will be rich with friendship and pleasantness. There was the first week of "hazing," the learning how to live together, the drinking in of the atmosphere of college life. How quickly those first few busy weeks passed—how soon, it seemed, the campus was mellow with falling leaves and the once-green lawns were white with snow!

And meanwhile, there were the football games . . . "All hail, all hail, Montclair!" ringing out through the night air . . . the traditional Thanksgiving and Christmas feasts . . . the staying up all night at Christmas . . . the yule logs and the carols . . . the crowded rooms and dining hall . . . the hum of conversations . . . the ping pong games . . . the dances . . . the sadness at having to say "good-bye" to the spirit of Eddy Russ.

CHAPIN HALL

Kowolick, Mundy, Scrivani, Toscano, Hourtoule, Kinney.

Chapin is the "Upper House" on campus, for here dwell junior and senior students who are well acquainted with the traditions and demands of dormitory life. With the return of male students, Chapin has become the center of social activities. The comfortable living room is the setting for many club meetings, tea dances, and musicales for commuting and resident students.

Each year for twelve weeks of the second semester while the seniors are practice teaching, the juniors "take over" the coveted position of leaders. When the seniors return, a Farewell Dinner is given by the underclassmen, marking the end of a four year period.

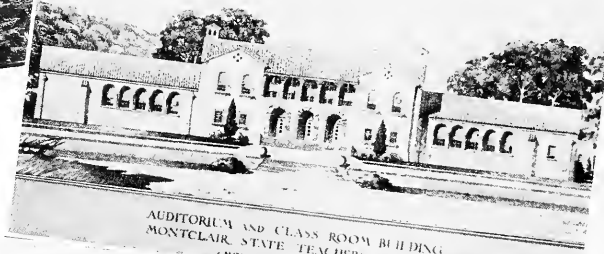

Chapin, like Russ, has traditions all its own . . . quick snacks in the kitchen . . . long winded bull sessions . . . to the diner and back before 10:30 . . . the feeling of having grown up and having to leave behind so many warm friendships.

J U N I O R S

In any college, the juniors are the pivotal figures on campus. During Orientation Week, they serve as benevolent protectors of the tortured freshmen; at year's end, they take over from the seniors the mantle of school leadership.

This year's class was notable for its many scholastic achievements and its extracurricular prominence. Many club offices were held by the enterprising juniors. During the fall season, the class sponsored a "Gypsy Caravan," an informal dance complete with costumed fortune tellers and practitioners of the mystic arts of the Orient. In May, the juniors held their spring formal, a highly successful affair that climaxed a busy year.

There was a substantial number of veterans in the class, many of whom had attended Montclair during the pre-war years. These veterans quickly adapted themselves to college life again and evidenced their desire to complete successfully their college education.

The junior year is usually an important one for the student, for as he realizes that he is nearing his goal, he begins to direct his studies with increasing directness toward his chosen field. He rounds out the courses essential to his major and concentrates his thinking upon specific ways and means of teaching. He no longer thinks of himself merely as a student, but as a potential teacher.

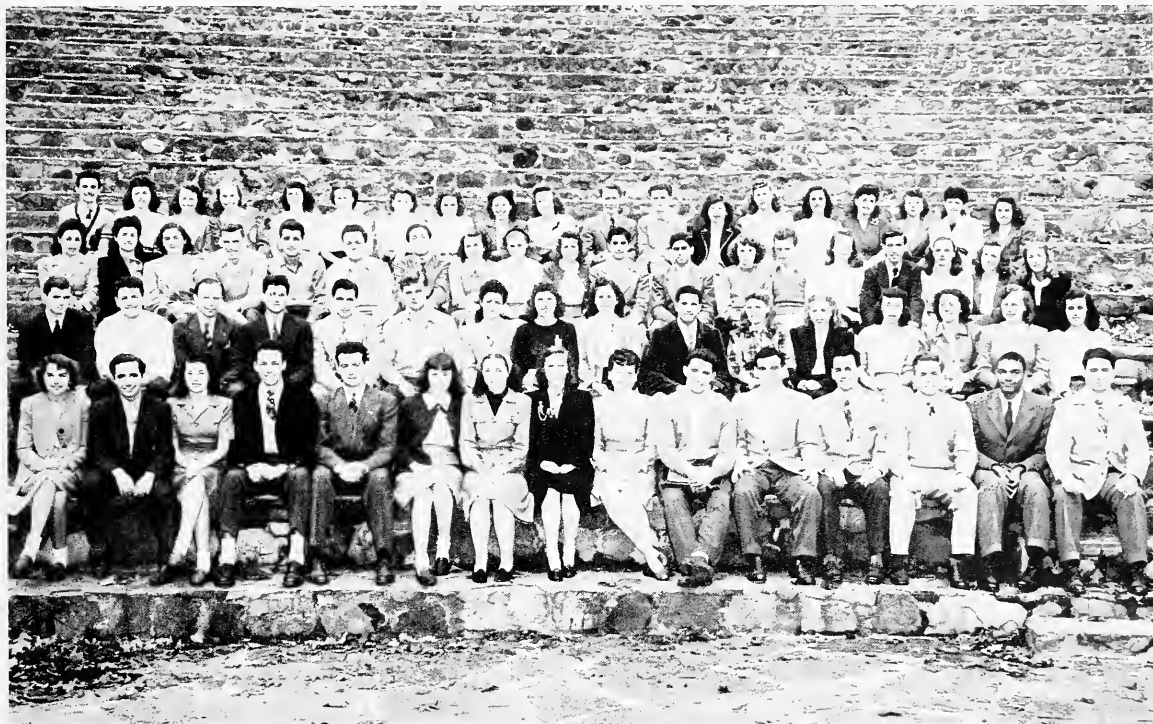

All of this was made obvious to the juniors as they welcomed back the seniors after the all-important twelve weeks' practice teaching period in the spring. The campus became alive with questions. What was practice teaching really like; were there any valuable "inside" tips that the seniors could give?

Certainly the class of '48 has upheld the high standards which have made Montclair one of the finest of the teachers' colleges. The class can look with confidence to its future contributions to the educational world.

SOPHOMORES

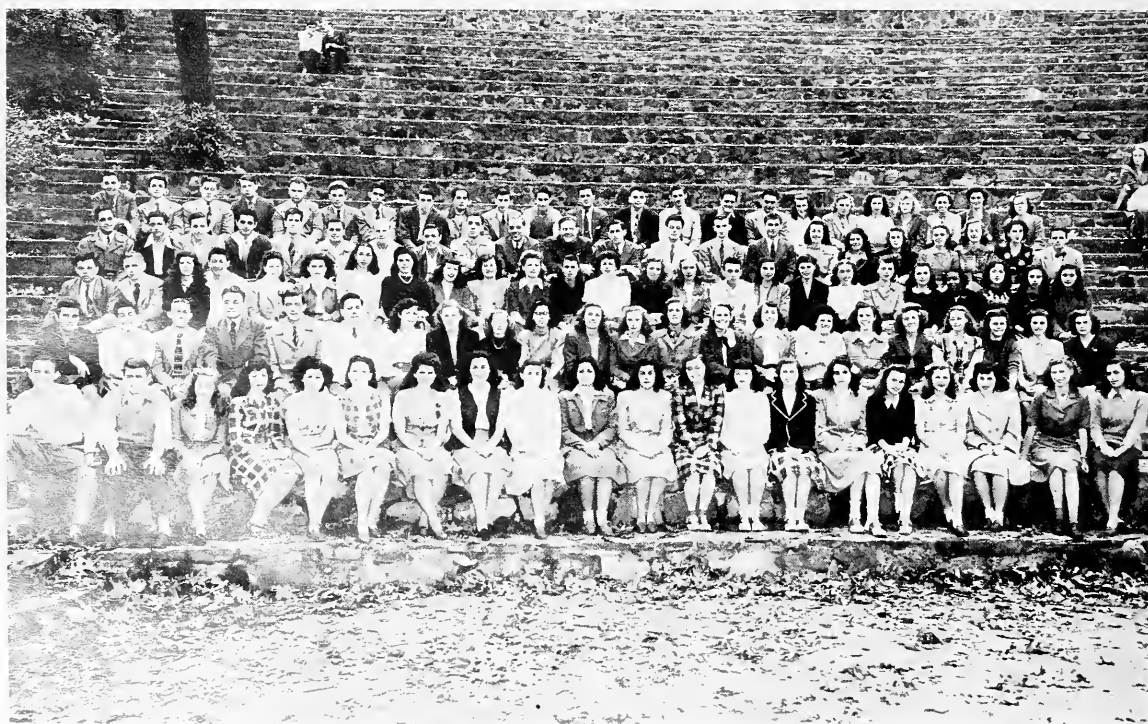

The class of '49 began the year in the traditional way—making life miserable for the lowly, incoming frosh students. This undertaking, as always, was eminently successful. The masters—at least for Orientation Week—made the most of their opportunities to force the slaves to obey their slightest whims. Each master wore a placard indicating his high rank in college life, and 'tis said that many freshmen, seeing a wearer of the mark of nobility, bowed in humble supplication for leniency.

The sophs in the dormitory took full advantage of maid service during the turbulent first week. They had their shoes shined, beds made, rooms dusted, and even had their books carried to school by the humble plebes.

The Peace Dance restored the sophomores to their more prosaic place, however, and remembering their own difficulties of the not-so-distant past, the members of the class extended to the freshmen a true Montclair welcome of friendship and help.

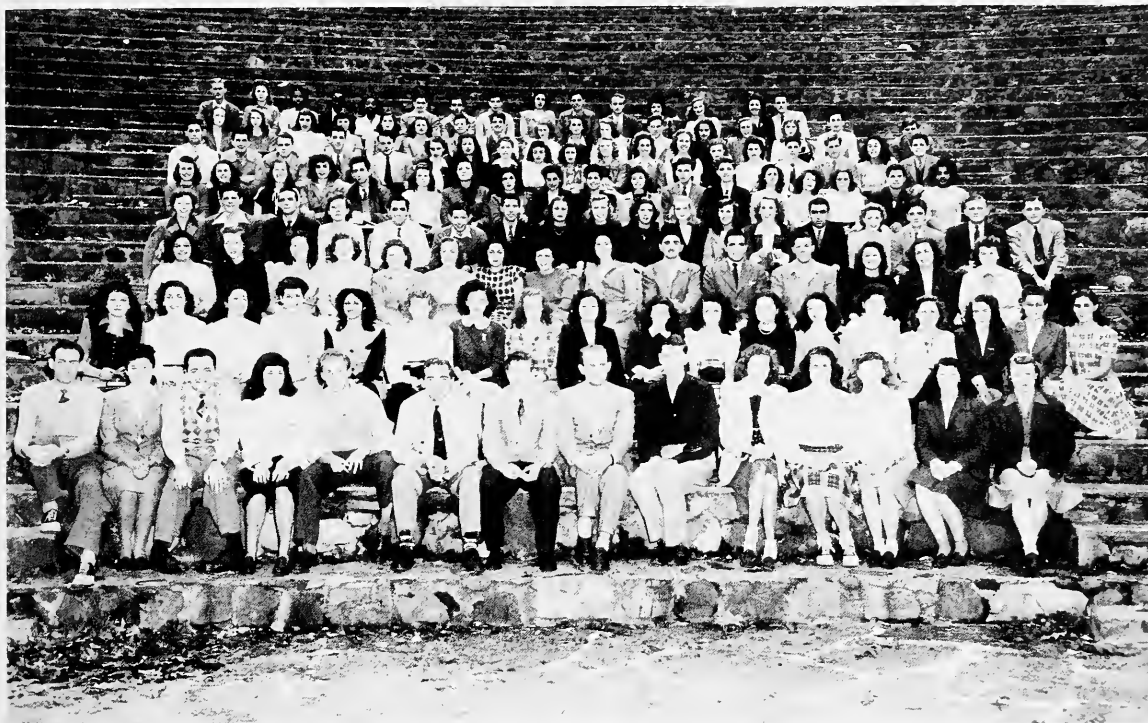

Containing a plentiful number of veterans, the class soon gave evidence of its potentialities as it contributed its services and members to the many activities on campus. It participated fully in social functions; long remembered will be its gala "Club 49" dance and its March formal.

The class realized that it would emerge upon an educational world in need of greater understanding and breadth of purpose, and thus it ranked high in its scholastic ability and intensity. In the years to come, this sophomore class will reflect credit upon the college of which it has been such an important part.

F R E S H M E N

The Freshman class this year was one of the most energetic in the history of the college. Realizing that it was beginning anew the peacetime traditions of Montclair, the class embarked upon an ambitious program of activities and scholarship. The class contained a large number of veterans who contributed their serious intentions and their desire to make the most of their efforts to secure a college education.

In the spirit of pre-war Montclair, there was a hectic Initiation Week during which the sophomores "welcomed" the freshmen in many bizarre ways. There were girls who wore their hair in pin curls on one side while the other side was combed straight down; makeup was forbidden. Signs were worn by the "Owls" and "Owlettes." Red and white freshman beanies were everywhere in evidence. Some of the boys were "requested" to roll up their trousers to the knee. And how embarrassing it was for the girls to have to carry a pillow case containing a mirror, comb, tooth brush, soap, and a bar of candy!

Outdoors, there were still more "tortures" imposed upon the poor frosh. The Sun Dial was a popular spot for calisthenics, marching drills, nonsense speeches, and almost impossible stunts. Woe to the freshman who encountered a sophomore on the campus grounds!

The cafeteria offered excellent opportunities too. While standing, the initiates had to eat "square" meals; salads, soups—and even sandwiches—had to be eaten with a spoon.

But soon enough the first week was over and peace was restored through a welcoming dance for the freshmen. Then, as college life began in earnest, the newcomers quickly became imbued with the spirit and feeling of tradition that is part of Montclair. The members of the class of 1950 will look back upon their freshman year with many fond recollections.
